Aims of the school

1. The International University of Japan is a private post graduate institution founded with the extensive support of Japan's industrial, financial and educational circles and of administrative in the area where it was established. Its administrative policy, based on a spirit of progressive internationalism, is open and autonomous.
2. The graduate school of the International University of Japan is a new professional school whose primary purpose is to educate capable young men and women and develop in them a high level of interdisciplinary and specialized knowledge which they can put to practical use in the international arena.

Features of the University

International University of Japan (IUJ) was founded in 1982, with the extensive support of Japan's industrial, educational and local communities, to train professionals who can actively make contributions to the international society with a high level of interdisciplinary and specialized knowledge.

As the nature of IUJ is very different from other Japanese graduate schools that mainly nurture scholars for academia, before stipulating its founding principles, IUJ was extensively discussed at the IUJ Advisory Committee, comprising eminent persons from industry and educational society, and at the Drafting Committee. The following is the Founding Principles of IUJ that have been made effective with the approval of the Board of Trustees Meeting.

Features of the Graduate School

The Graduate School of International Management (hereafter referred to as "GSIM") is dedicated to developing "wise" (i.e., socially responsible) individuals for global business and social leadership, with an emphasis on serving the emerging countries. The two key components of GSIM mission are nurturing Social Responsibility (SR) and Global Business (GB), which the school aims to achieve and operationalize through its innovative policies, recruitment strategies, placement efforts, teaching, research, and service strategies. SR in GSIM mission derives from its belief that GSIM and its graduates should not only be compelled by financial benefits but also by their sense of duty to social causes. At GSIM, we mainly focus on the following aims in SR:

- To enhance the social responsibility policies of GSIM stakeholders, including Japanese corporations, Japanese government organizations, and local community
- To educate students to be socially responsible leaders, stressing the need of students from emerging countries in Asia and Africa.

GB focuses on the needs surrounding all the constituencies that GSIM serves. For students and faculty, it is vital to keep abreast of the ever-changing dynamics of global business, supported by solid theoretical and practical bases, in order to advance their own careers and professionalism. For other stakeholders, which include Japanese corporations and government organizations, it is vital that GSIM nurtures students who can blend their business objectives with a sense of social leadership because such organizations expect this balanced outcome.

At GSIM, we mainly focus on the following aims in GB:

- To instill global mindedness in students, including those from emerging countries in Asia and Africa.
- To help students understand the business and cultures of other countries and serve their home countries by contributing to their development, following graduation.
- To help Japanese corporations, Japanese government organizations, local SMEs, and other stakeholders (e.g. foreign entities operating in Japan) to become globalized with a sense of social responsibility.

Features of the Programmes

- MBA Program

The IUJ MBA was started in 1988 as the first US style business school in Japan, offering all courses in English. Recognized as one of the top 100 global MBAs by the Economist's "Best Business Schools," the IUJ MBA focuses on "Leveraging Emerging Asia for Global Advantage." It delivers the knowledge, skills and mindset required to gain a competitive advantage in the world's fastest-growing economies.

- Japan-Global Development Program

Japan-Global Development Program (JGDP) is a two-year master's program to provide students the opportunity to learn universal development and growth logic in the field of management, using Japan's experiences in economic development and corporate growth as basic case materials.

Students will learn much from modern

Japan's experience of development, which differs significantly from the history of growth and development found in the West. Students can study the "Japanese experience" systematically, including even negative ones, so that they may use this knowledge to contribute to the development of their own countries.

GSIM's MBA and JGDP prepare students for a career as all-round managers who can succeed in today's complicated world. We are unique in that we offer small-size classes and a delicate blend of contents covering both Western and Japanese management ideas. Students can benefit from our comprehensive education, multicultural learning environment, and global opportunities to network.

Within our students receive a hands-on learning experience through core courses, small group seminars, an integrated research project, and a wide range of electives. MBA/JGDP students also enjoy the chance to take part in international exchange programs, internships, and a host of exciting events. Our multicultural campus provides unequalled opportunities to build your global network and discover international careers.
